

JUAN GIUSTI CORDERO <juangicor@gmail.com> es profesor de Historia en la Universidad de Puerto Rico, Recinto de Río Piedras. Posee un doctorado en Sociología de Binghamton University y un grado en Derecho de la Universidad de Puerto Rico. Dirigió entre 2004 y 2011 el Centro de Acción Urbana, Comunitaria y Empresarial de Río Piedras (CAUCE), adscrito a la UPR-Río Piedras. Ha publicado varios trabajos sobre la historia social, ambiental y legal de Puerto Rico y el Caribe; y ha asesorado a grupos comunitarios en Piñones (Loíza) y Vieques. En Piñones ha sido testigo experto en casos de titularidad de tierras. Es coeditor de Sugarlandia Revisited: Sugar and Colonialism in Asia and the Americas, 1800-1940 (2007) y de Vieques en el 2003: posibilidades y peligros (2003). Trabaja en un libro titulado Tierras cimarronas: Piñones en la región de Loíza, siglos XVI-XIX, del cual el artículo incluido en este número de Caribbean Studies forma parte.

JEB SPRAGUE <jebsprague@gmail.com> is an Adjunct Professor of Sociology at the University of California, Santa Barbara. He has two books published, Paramilitarism and the Assault on Democracy in Haiti (2012, Monthly Review Press) and Globalization and Transnational Capitalism in Asia and Oceania (Editor, 2016, Routledge). He is the author of articles and essays that have appeared in a number of scholarly journals. His actual main research focuses political economy, social theory, globalization and transnationalism, development, inequality, comparative historical sociology, race and class, and his area of expertise is the Caribbean. He is currently working to revise and publish his entire Ph.D. dissertation, titled “The Caribbean and Global Capitalism.”

ANNE ELLER <anne.eller@yale.edu> es Catedrática Auxiliar de Historia de América Latina y del Caribe en la Universidad de Yale. Ha realizado investigaciones en España, Cuba, República Dominicana, Puerto Rico, Nueva York y Washington, D.C. Su primera monografía, titulada We Dream Together: Dominican Independence, Haiti, and the Fight for a Free Caribbean, será publicada por Duke University Press. Es autora de los artículos “‘Awful Pirates’ and ‘Hordes of Jackals’: Santo Domingo/The Dominican Republic in Nineteenth Century Historiography” (Small Axe 18:44, July 2014, 80-94) y “‘All Would be Equal in the Effort’: Santo Domingo’s ‘Italian Revolution’, Independence, and Haiti, 1809-1822” (Journal of Early American History 1:2 (2011), 105-141).

FLORENCIA BONFIGLIO <flobonfiglio@hotmail.com> has a Ph.D. in Literature from the University of Buenos Aires and teaches XXth century Latin American Literature at the University of La Plata, Argentina. She is currently a post-doc fellow at CONICET (National Council of Scientific Research, Argentina) and specializes in Caribbean literature (especially Anglophone and Francophone areas). Besides publishing a number of journal articles and book chapters on Latin American and Caribbean literature, she published La unidad submarina. Ensayos caribeños de Kamau Brathwaite in 2010 and in 2011 was awarded the essay prize by the Centro de Estudios del Caribe from Casa de las Américas, Cuba for “Caliban, Origin and Permanence of a Symbol.”

PAUL DIXON <tudobem@purdue.edu> has taught Portuguese, Spanish and Latin American Literature since earning his doctorate at the University of North Carolina in 1981. He has published four books and numerous articles on Latin American literature, with a particular interest in the Brazilian author Machado de Assis. He has taught as a visiting professor at the Federal University of Rio Grande do Sul, the Catholic University of Rio Grande do Sul, Brigham Young University, and FEEVALE University.

DAMARIS PUÑALES ALPÍZAR <dxp204@case.edu> is Assistant Professor of Spanish at Case Western Reserve University (CWRU) where she teaches courses on literature, film, and Caribbean and Latin American culture, and literary theory. She has published numerous articles on Latin American, Cuban, and Spanish culture. One of her areas of interest is the Soviet influence on the cultural production after the nineties. She is the author of Escrito en cirílico: el ideal soviético en la cultura posnoventa (Written in Cyrillic: The Soviet Ideal in the Cuban Cultural Production after the Nineties), Santiago de Chile: Cuarto Propio, 2012). In 2014 she published (editor and introduction) El Atlántico como frontera. Meditaciones culturales entre Cuba y España (The Atlantic as Frontier: Cultural Meditations between Cuba and Spain), Madrid: Verbum.